Can you believe we are approaching the June weekend of COMMA 2017? This seems impossible. You young guys and gals will not understand. The elements fought us early in the weekend but many just arrived a little bit later which made things almost seem calm and organized in Tech. I said almost.

The beginning of each season often includes some surprises in Tech. There were a few fire extinguisher, belt and helmet issues along with a couple of brake light challenges.

All we ask is that you remember that these items are checked for YOUR SAFETY. If the issue does not represent an immediate threat we often grant a reprieve for the weekend with the expectation that things will be addressed before the next event. I will check with those this applies to so you will not need to come back through Tech.

Speaking of Fire Extinguishers!

You just never know when you might have need for one.

I'm certain Jerry was awake and tending to this!?

A few of the cars looked wider and sleeker this season. Custom work was common.

The GT classes are looking strong for this season. Some of the favorites suffered mechanical issues making the points tally already worth watching. A few of our top competitors were simply missing also. The suspense is real. I'm rooting for Vettel.

Remember early entries get points!
